

SAYS THAT BAD COHEN TO IZZY: I'LL FIX YOU UP WITH A PEACH; BUT A DOCTOR SHOULD FIX HIM UP

He Makes a Date Over the Phone and Her Husband and His Big Brother Help
Her Keep It.

Isidor Roxland, No. 256 Perry Street, silk waist salesman, admitted to-day it was a "surprise" all right he got when he called on the "peach" his friend, Cohen, sent him to. He had not seen Cohen for a year, and after he meets him once again he does not expect to see him for another year.

Cohen, so Roxland explained to the Magistrate, has red hair. Roxland expects to spend considerable time with in the next few days searching for "a funny fellow, Cohen, with red hair, one of these here now practical jokers."

The effect of Cohen's little joke was so painful to Izzy, the latter is alleged to have tried to jump from a window.

Mrs. Sarah Berman, young, attractive, wife of a fur merchant, testified in Night Court that three weeks ago a redheaded man followed her, trying to speak to her, and she had to slam the door in his face at her home, No. 871 Fox Street, Bronx.

Tuesday she had a telephone call and a man said he was the young fellow who had followed her and wanted to come up to see her. Mrs. Berman developed a plot. She made an engagement for yesterday afternoon.

There was more talk, but the same man did not seem to be talking. "I hear you are a very stunning young girl," said the voice. That sounded odd from a man who had seen her, but Mrs. Berman did not contradict. The voice said it would bring some bonbons. Mrs. Berman said she didn't eat candy. The voice suggested a present of a silk waist, but Mrs. Berman declined that too.

"Then I'll have to make it a surprise for you," said the voice. "All right," said Mrs. Berman. "And I'll have a surprise for you too."

She did. She told her husband Max and Max got his big brother and the superintendent of the house and the superintendent's big brother, and they hid. They were the surprise.

Roxland appeared on time. He was all smiles and graces. "Hello, sweetie. Are you all alone?" was his greeting when Mrs. Berman opened the apartment door. The silk waist salesman advanced to greet her. She screamed. That was the signal. The Bermans, male, and the superintendents fell on Roxland. They told him. Roxland showed it in Night Court.

"Judge," said Roxland, "this is all a mistake. I meet my old friend Cohen the other day. I hadn't seen him for a year. He was glad to see me. 'How are you, Roxy?' he says. 'I'm engaged,' I says. 'You,' says Cohen, 'you don't know anything about girls. I'll fix you up with a peach. Just wait a minute.' And then he goes and telephones, and in a minute he calls me to come to the telephone and says, 'There you are. A beauty, my boy. Fix it up with her.' And I talked with the lady and said I would bring presents but she said no; but I was to call to-day at 2:30 o'clock. When I call I am murdered."

"Is this the man who followed you home?" the Magistrate asked Mrs. Berman. Mrs. Berman said no it wasn't, because Roxland's hair was not red.

She said she didn't want him sent to jail because of his father and mother, who were in court.

"You may be telling the truth and you may be a wonderful liar, said the Magistrate, "but I am inclined to believe you are a victim. In any event your own conduct was unjustifiable and I am going to fine you $10."

Roxland paid the fine and went out talking to himself. "Cohen, my friend! Such a friend," he muttered.

MACHOLD MAY RETIRE.

If Speaker Does So McGinnies Is Probable Successor.

ALBANY, Feb. 17.—H. Edmund Machold of Jefferson County may retire as Speaker of the Assembly at the end of the present session to become head of the Northern New York Trust Company at Watertown. Machold is now Vice President of the company. He is serving his second year as Speaker and tenth year in the Assembly.

In case Machold steps down, Joseph A. McGinnies of Chautauque, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, probably will succeed him. Machold, even if he quits the Speaker's chair, will continue to be a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in case Gov. Miller decides not to seek re-election.

Hunter Girl Fuss, Fun and Frolic Takes Form of Roman Bazaar

MISS MARY MANDA
MISS HELEN GRAVES, OPERA SINGER.
MISS HENRIETTA ODER, FORTUNE TELLER.

Opens To-Night to Win Scholarships in the American College in Rome.

To-night the Roman Bazaar and entertainment, including musicales, exhibition dancing, early English drama, story telling and many classical features, will be given by the girls of Hunter College in the Assembly Hall.

The same show will be also given to-morrow afternoon and evening.

It appears that Hunter College graduates may study absolutely free of charge at the American College in Rome—that is, if Hunter can raise its quota of $4,000, which entitles its students to go there. According to several earnest souls at 68th Street and Park Avenue, there is half that amount already in the exchequer. The tables of that period, food cooked Roman style and served by laughing maidens garbed as slaves. Miss Marie Manda is Chairman of the feast. Another booth where shakels will not be refused is the old-fashioned tinsmith emporium. Accurate facial likenesses will be snapped. Henrietta G. Oder will tell fortunes. The girls at college have collected more than 300 wish-bones, dried and cured to the proper degree of elasticity. You get two wishes for a two-bit piece. If you get the big half of the bone it entitles you to pick your own gift from a large assortment.

A pretty girl with sharp shears will cut out your silhouette. Children from the Model School will perform. There will be toe dances and national dances. The high school department will render excerpts from the latest jazz. Saturday night the Choral Club and the college orchestra will pipe down on melody, vocal and instrumental. One of the treats will be the appearance in this city of Miss Helen Graves, an opera singer, who has volunteered to render "Samson and Delilah," and if she is hard pressed for more will release the "Aria from Carmen." Miss Graves is a graduate of the musical department of the college. Miss Florence Morris will be her accompanist. There will be a dramatic playlet, "Over the Garden Wall," in which piece, according to Miss Lillian Goldman—a bewitching lass who graduated last year—there is a dragon. The girls of the college have been preparing a gala week-end of fun, fun and frolic to raise that leg. Miss Florence Morris will be $2,000.
